

Our first on-site prayer was on the plaza of City Hall. Sirens started blaring while we were there — a false alarm—and staff spilled out every doorway. Several joined us, including two fire-fighters. Two days later, building permits which we had sought for six months were granted.

Another local after school program recently experienced several break-ins. Our youth prepared boxes of supplies and artwork for them, choosing from the abundance that we have been given, and then we prayed on-site the day we made the delivery. Since then, we have continued to partner with them to reach our local community.

Our Nepali partners pray early every morning for their non-Christian neighbors, and then social outreach ministries in nearby villages. After years of very little “movement” in evangelism, in February, three Hindu families were baptized into Christ, in May, eleven individuals, and in July, fifteen more. Many new believers have been baptized in India and Pakistan over the last few months, too. The decision to be baptized is no small matter in these nations, for it can mean loss of family, jobs, and even persecution. But when someone finds the joy of Jesus, they are willing to pay whatever price is necessary.

I could go on and on concerning the many ways God has intervened in CWM ministries everywhere. Join us in prayer, and let’s open The Door of Hope all around the world!”

I truly could go on and on! Since writing that newsletter, our local youth have engaged in two more service projects. In one, they served breakfast to the teachers of their school, and I truly believe it launched a new era of relationships between students and teachers. The very next day, they took school supplies to those same teacher, to be distributed to students who can’t afford to buy them. Imagine the joy of giving our youth are experiencing – especially those who are recipients of those same packets of supplies!

One of you sent me a message last week, expressing your gratitude for us “giving you the opportunity to give and be a part” of what God is doing here. That is exactly the kind of partner we long for! Thank you all so much for reaching deep to give sacrificially. In the last 2 weeks, we have received gifts of approximately $23,000 in response to our request for help. We are on our way to the need for $115,000!

“Thank you for giving to the Lord.” Come see “the lives that were changed!”

Blessings and love,
